REPUBLICANS MUST HUSTLE

Work Necessary To Win The Day.

ALL MUST HELP IN THE CAMPAIGN

Speakers in the Second Precinct Sound the Warning Note.

A note of warning was sounded last night to all the Republicans on the Island of Oahu. At the meeting of the Second Precinct of the Fourth District held on the baseball grounds at 8 o'clock, the leaders called attention to the apathy shown by the exclusive 400 of the party in not attending the precinct meetings.

The chairman and the speakers who stood under the bulging ceiling of the big tent expressed their sorrow that so many stayed at home and allowed the work of the campaign to devolve upon a few. They made fun of the men who stood upon street corners and told each other how the Republican party was going to win in the November election, and said that they were sure of a Republican victory all over the Islands.

Chairman J. Harry Fisher said he was ashamed of the showing made by the Second Precinct, the banner precinct of the Fourth District. Of the 420 members enrolled on the lists only twenty-nine were present, while the exclusive "400" stayed at home.

"Work!" was the watchword adopted at the little meeting last night. "Work or the Republican party will be defeated," was the general substance of all the speeches.

One speaker said there was always a tendency among Anglo-Saxons to underestimate the strength of their enemies.

A number of speakers predicted defeat unless the party's supporters made a personal campaign and carried the fight into the enemy's camp.

"I was a drizzling, rainy night, and this perhaps kept many indoors. But there were many who came long distances and said they had given up business engagements in order to be present when their precinct leader called them."

Chairman Fisher stated, in opening the meeting, that it was called primarily for the purpose of choosing an enrollment committee, to round up the voters and get them to register.

He said there were about 4,500 names already registered, of which about 3,500 were natives and about 1,000 haoles. The whites, he said, were extremely slow and apathetic in enrolling.

"Get out and work on those who have themselves as qualified voters. The meeting showed with what diffidence the "stay-at-homes" viewed the campaign. Instead of choosing an enrollment committee of three or four, he appointed all present to act as a committee of one each to cause every white man they knew to register.

William Haywood, former United States Consul General, made a stirring speech on the duty which the rank and file of the Republicans owed to their party. It was a poor Republican, he said, who would not attend his precinct meetings, and this was especially brought to his attention by the absence of the exclusive "400." He thought the chairman did well to appoint all present as an enrollment committee. There was nothing good done in the world without work and plenty of it. The party members would have to get out and hustle, and hustle hard for the next four weeks. There were 418 at the primaries, and as yet few appeared in the field for work. In the cities on the Mainland they believed in brass bands and torchlight processions, and he thought there was much good in it. Brass bands and torchlight processions did not explain the principles of the party, but they were as necessary as the printed ballot in making success certain. He was in favor of calling out the brass bands to arouse enthusiasm every night.

He had found in politics that the man who was not a candidate could do more good with certain people than anybody else, because people would listen more attentively to them than to the candidates. J. H. Pearce expressed similar sentiments. He wanted to see work and hard work done in the coming campaign. There was too much lethargy apparent on every side. The meeting was called to urge the carrying on of the work of registering citizens who had so far neglected their duty.

W. A. Herzhall said the Republicans of the precinct were not taking the interest in the party's campaign that they should. If proper campaigning was not carried on the party would go down to defeat. He was a Republican who would cast his first vote in November as an American citizen and he expressed a hope that others who would be able to cast their first vote would not shirk their duty at the registration booth.

Will E. Fisher said he had been around Honolulu for about two years and had not found any better Republican here than himself. He felt that somebody was derelict and did not take proper interest in the welfare of the party.

"You are not doing your work," exclaimed Fisher earnestly. "You will lose if you don't get into the harness and pull. The showing that is being made by the opposition is being well done and with little experience. You have got to do hard work or you are going to lose this fight. That is my honest opinion."

"The candidates have learned how to do the campaign handshake properly, and they think they are going to be elected. I tell you they will get left if you don't get out and do better work. Our meeting tonight is an example of the laxity of campaigning in this precinct."

"Why, gentlemen, I would come to my precinct meeting if I had to come in my pajamas if necessary to be on hand. There is not enough whooping up going on. A few men are now doing the electioneering. The rank and file are not here. You have got to adopt a more aggressive policy if you wish to be assured of success. I have had more than ten minutes' political experience in my lifetime, and know how these things run. You ought to bring in your neighbors. If you can't do that, bring in the Democrats and the Independents."

"Get out and work on those who have already registered and convince them all that they ought to vote the Republican ticket. Make them throw down their petty differences of the past. Make them vote the Republican ticket from A to Z. This is the main fight."

"How do we win elections in the big cities on the Coast? By having big precinct meetings and by whooping her up as the cowboys say. Tell everybody who you are going to vote for. When I cast my ballot it will be done so that everybody can tell who I am voting for."

"As for Bryan, I met him at the Trans-Mississippi Congress before he became famous as the Democratic leader. It was at Ogden, Utah. John P. Irish and Senator Stewart of Nevada had their great debate on silver. That I had the honor of voting for that grand man, though defeated, James G. Blaine," said Wright.

After advising those present to register and secure the registration of all whites who had not yet done so, the chairman closed the meeting.

MUST TAKE CARE.

Voters May Easily Nullify The Ballots by Mistakes.

One of the most difficult problems of the election to be solved will be that of educating the people who have hitherto been disqualified to vote, as to the manner in which an Australian ballot is handled. The big blank ballot containing the names of every candidate of every party will no doubt be confusing to the general rank and file, and inaccuracies in the votes are likely to be many. According to the election laws, the slightest error may cause it to be rejected.

Section 77 of the laws contains the list of causes by which a ballot can be thrown out. They are:

If more names are voted for on a ballot than there are offices to be filled; or if on a ballot for Representative a larger number of votes are marked than the law authorizes; or if a ballot contains any mark or symbol whereby it may be identified, or any mark or symbol contrary to the provisions hereof; or

If two ballots are found in the ballot box so folded together as to make it clearly evident that more than one ballot was put in by one person; or

If a ballot in any other way be contrary to the provisions hereof, then such ballot and all it contains must be rejected.

But no ballot shall be rejected for containing a less number of names voted for than the law authorizes.

Each ballot which shall be held to be invalid as aforesaid, shall be endorsed on the back by the chairman of inspectors, with his name or initials, and the word "rejected."

The law is very specific on this subject, and it behooves every voter to exercise the utmost care in marking off his ballot.

Native Names of Candidates.

As the names of many of the Republican candidates are best known to the Hawaiian readers by their Hawaiian cognomens, the full list of Senatorial and Representative candidates for the Third Senatorial and Fourth and Fifth Representative Districts, respectively, are given herewith:

DEMOCRATS AFTER THEM

Portuguese Votes Are Sought.

PLANS LAID YESTERDAY

Meeting to be Held Tonight to Talk Bryanism to the Colony Here.

The Democrats are after the Portuguese vote. The leaders of the party invited many of the influential Portuguese to a meeting which was held yesterday afternoon in the Democratic headquarters, and there laid before them plans for getting the colony into the Democratic party.

J. M. Camara is a legislative candidate on the Democratic ticket. He was present at the meeting, and in his own interests as well as for those of the party, he asked them to put their trust in the 18 to 1 party and become members of the untitled.

Mr. Camara and others were appointed to select a hall in which to hold a meeting tonight in Portuguese town, somewhere along the slopes of Punchbowl.

The swarthy sons of Portugal will be exhorted in the silver-tongued style of Bryan, and an attempt will be made to explain to them what 18 to 1 really means, although one of their leaders was so impressed with the magnitude of such an explanation that he denied even the ability of Bryan himself to explain it.

Notices will be sent around today to the Portuguese calling them to the meeting.

DAVID EXPECTED TONIGHT.

Prince David is expected in Honolulu at 8 o'clock tonight on the chartered steamer Waialeale.

If he arrives before that hour he will register and make arrangements to leave for Hawaii on the Mauna Loa, which sails for Hawaii on Friday.

ARE SURE OF KONA.

The Democratic headquarters' prophets are certain that Kona is for Prince David.

When he makes his stumping tour in the district the Democrats aver that Sam Parker and Wilcox will have to take second and third places respectively.

"BOB" WILCOX DENIES.

Editor Advertiser—In the news columns of your paper of the 3d instant, under the heading of "Bob Wilcox Back From Stumping," a paragraph of the said article reads as follows: "It is almost an assured fact that H. P. Baldwin will be elected on Maui." The reporter with whom I had an interview upon the subject has misconstrued my utterances. The words that I used upon that point was this, "That H. P.

Baldwin was a very strong candidate upon the Republican party."

ROBERT W. WILCOX.
The article in question said:
"On being asked about the prospects of the Republican party, Wilcox said: 'It is almost an assured fact that H. P. Baldwin will be elected. The Republican party is pretty strong at Wailuku and East Maui.'"

This was written by Abram G. Kaula-kou, of the Advertiser staff, himself a Hawaiian. He interviewed Mr. Wilcox for the Advertiser, and states that he correctly reported him.

THE FUSION TALK.

D. Kalanokalani, accompanied by William White, has gone on a trip to Wailuku to negotiate the present trouble there between the Independents and the Democrats. The members at the headquarters will defer slating other candidates for the "Home Rule" party until D. Kalanokalani makes his report.

ORGAN OF DEMOCRACY.

The Aloha Aina's Leading Editorial on Politics.

The leader in the editorial page of the Aloha Aina, which was issued on Monday for the first time since that paper was purchased by the members of the Democratic central committee, was as follows:

BE A DEMOCRAT TO BE RIGHT.

The Republicans are continually calling the attention of the people to join their side, because the wise, the wealthy and the weighty men of the country are with them, calling the attention of the poor Hawaiians to live in harmony with the foreign kamaaina as there will be immense benefits accrue to the soil of Hawaii. This is what we have to say on that.

The poor Hawaiian patriots are not altogether without foreign friends, wealthy and men of weight on their side. There is J. O. Carter, Mr. Macfarlane, Paul Isenberg Jr., Frank Brown and S. M. Damon and others, these men are with the Democratic party, and they are also with the party which some of the people are calling and calling Independents.

What we desire most is, for the people to be united and work in harmony with the Democrats, who are known to have friends in the Legislature of America. Let us not be stubborn, or we may be thrown aside altogether, and gain nothing.

The kness of the Republicans are shaking because the people may rise and become one with the Democrats, and they, the Republicans, will be scorched, because there is fire in the house.

PACIFIC HEIGHTS PROPERTY.

C. W. Booth Transfers all Interest to C. S. Desky.

C. W. Booth has transferred his entire interest in Pacific Heights to C. S. Desky, the papers being filed for record on September 22. The balance of the purchase price, $67,500 was paid over to the seller and the deal made complete.

Mr. Desky has held the property under an agreement of sale for a long time, and had paid over $30,000 while it was in his hands for improvement.

The result of the suit against Mr. Booth brought by Mrs. Berger settled the title, and transfer was effected without further delay. The transaction is one of the largest made in city or suburban property.

PRINCE DAVID ON THE HOMESTRETCH.

Prince David, Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress, went to the Island of Hawaii a few days ago to speak for Bryan and himself. He neglected to register as a voter in Honolulu before he went, and the law is such that should he be not registered by October 6 he would be disqualified as a candidate. Great was the row at Democratic headquarters when a wise man told them of this. Forthwith the Waialeale, a little steamer, was hired especially and a messenger dispatched to Hilo to catch Prince David and bring him back. He is expected to be here this evening. Of course his stumping tour on Hawaii will be cut short.
